The morning session, which begins at 11:00 will be led by Miss Mary Sweeney, Head of Bertram House at Radcliffe College. The subject will be "Civil Rights in South America." Ask $14,000 Less In Special Articles

A warrant of 68 articles, seeking in special items $14,000 less than last year's, was this week approved by the selectmen and it is included verbatim in today's Townsman. Last year the special articles totalled $97728.96, whereas this year they total $83,473.76.

Some of the large items which appeared last year but which have been omitted this year are the purchase of the Shaw and Grout property, the 1939 payment on which was to have totalled $6450, the Elm street articles $7400 and the B. P. W. truck items $7500. The B. P. W. requests for special funds are down this year from $44,531.53 to $31,656, despite an increase from $15,000 to $18,000 in the request for W. P. A. materials under which $10,375 was appropriated last year.

In contrast to this good news is the gloomy statement from town treasurer Thaxter Eaton, corroborated by the state auditors, that probably no free cash will be available this year for reducing the tax rate.

Articles filed before the deadline last Friday not previously mentioned in the Townsman included: Chandler and Sanders road water extension $4500; Robidoux water main in Brundrett avenue $925; re-opening of North school $925; hard-playstead bleachers $1500; hard-surfacing High Plain road to Greenwood road $3300; curbing and hard-surfacing Sutherland street $1750; River street (Ballardvale) sidewalk $900; drain in Shawsheen Heights $600; re-locating and widening Andover street and Argilla road $625; band concerts $200; selling Bailey school; acceptance of $200 from Legion for prize school essay.

The warrant begins on the center spread, pages 8 and 9.

March 16 is the date and George Washington Hall is the place to enjoy an old-fashioned evening with a melodrama and specialty acts presented by the Play Production class of the Andover Evening Study Groups.

Blizzard Catches Town By Surprise

Snow-starved New England became snow-bound New England when an innocent-looking Wednesday morning snow flurry last night turned into a blizzard which tied up traffic and communication facilities. This morning Andover woke up to find snow drifted to several feet deep in places, some of them being very inconvenient places such as back-doors, garages, etc.

Early in the evening the six town plows went out, with the tractor, the sidewalk tractor and private sidewalk plows, and during the night the big private street plows were added to the force. The Big Mike was also sent out to try to keep things passable, but plowing proved for a while almost useless as the wind blew the snow right back in after the plows in many places.

Most motorists left their cars at home, and those that ventured out wished that they had. All public garages were jammed and there were many calls for tow-trucks. Transportation facilities were stalled at an early hour, including bus and train travel. Many Andoverites were stranded in the North station after the Sonja Henie performance and did not arrive here until 8:25 this morning. Food trucks failed to come through and no mail arrived. By mid-morning things were pretty well under control, the storm having subsided completely and it was just a question of time before things returned to normal.

SHAW WITHDRAWS

William R. Shaw last Friday sent in his written request to be allowed to withdraw from the selectmen's race, and the request, being legally made before five o'clock, was granted. This leaves just selectman Shepard and P. LeRoy Wilson in the race.

Article Praises Local Male Choir

High praise is accorded the Andover Male Choir in the recent edition of "The Crescendo," the monthly publication of the New England Federation of Men's Glee Clubs. The article includes pictures of conductor J. Everett Collins and accompanist Miss Marion L. Abbott, and of them it says:

"J. Everett Collins is a recognized leader of men. He is a high ranking baritone; a veteran of the World War; a member of the Andover Board of Selectmen; conductor of the Greater Lawrence Churches Choir and director of the Andover Male Choir, which organization has the honor of winning seven consecutive Federation prizes.

"Miss Marion Abbott was born in the town of Andover. After her graduation from the local high school, her interests turned to music. Studying in Boston, she supplemented her work by one summer of special study in London, England, at the Tobias Matthey School of Music, under the personal instruction of Harold Craxton. She is the organist at the West Congregational Church in Andover and the accompanist since 1933 of the Andover Male Choir."

"Must Not Lose Sight Of Cultural Values Of Education," Says P. H. S. Teacher

In these days when such stress is laid on vocational education, or preparing pupils for a job, it seems essential to come to the defense of the academic course, lest we lose sight of the cultural values of education. Thus writes Miss Munroe of the Pynchard faculty in a paper for a course in Guidance, given by Dr. Gooch at Boston University School of Education. She continues as follows:

Mr. Pearson of the "Boston Herald" says: "The public school system must not only give boys and girls the tool subjects, but it must also give them a common heritage of languages, culture, and democratic attitude. Your society is to survive as a democracy." So we must organize the college to fit the needs of our children today. The present enrollment in Pynchard High school is 386. Of these 144 are registered in the college course. This 37% of the total number should be guided towards their future careers.

Recently in the Andover Junior high school an effort to help the pupils choose the right course and give them an introduction to the various careers has been made in connection with the Social Science course. In the 7th grade there is a unit on guidance in the textbooks used; in the 8th grade the homeroom teacher advises the students, and in the 9th grade there is carried out a vocational project, taking more than a week of time devoted generally to Social Science. In this work (done just before the May vacation) are included class discussions, the individuals' sending for college catalogues, looking up various professions, and writing a paper on "My Life Work." Suggestions are made for personal analysis. Thus a small beginning has been made in the right direction. Guidance, to be effective, must include various tests, in intelligence, achievement in different subjects, and personality. This will aid in discovering the abilities and interests of the students.

In an effort to find out the status of the present Latin students in Pynchard and that of those of the 1937 and 1938 classes who studied Latin at least two years a survey was made. The result was information that may be helpful in modifying the academic course and guiding students in the right direction. Too often parents urge their children to attempt greater undertakings than their abilities justify. A system of tests will help to point out the difficulties. All must realize that the child's day is so filled now with various activities that it is difficult to find time in school or at home for sufficient preparation and yet assignments given have to be practically as long as formerly when there were fewer distractions and interruptions. In the last twenty-five years we have reduced the number of school years and expect the students to be just as well prepared for college as when they had nine grades and four years of high school.

In a small school system like Andover's we can not expect to follow a plan of guidance such as Providence or Newton has, but there are handbooks available which can be helpful in working out in a simple form various methods. Group guidance, as exemplified by Providence, is less expensive than individual guidance, as it is comparable in cost to regular instruction; but individual guidance is more effective. I feel sure that under a system of guidance the mortality in the Latin class would be considerably reduced, failures in general be lessened, and finally leaving school before graduation practically eliminated. Guidance will have to be in the hands of the principal and all teachers of the faculty rather than depending upon a body of experts as in the big city schools. However, with the facilities of the junior and senior high schools co-operating it ought to work out advantageously.

MEMORIAL HALL LIBRARY NOTES

The largest monthly circulation in the history of the library was recorded for January with a total of 11,943 books issued for home use. This is a gain of 26% over January 1939.

BUILDING YOUR LIFE. BENNETT. The author, as Director of Orientation in Pasadena Junior College, is well equipped to present these methods of self-evaluation. She summarizes researches related to the choice of a career and helps the reader plan his life for its greatest fulfillment.

ROBERT BROWNING AND JULIA WEDGWOOD; A BROKEN FRIENDSHIP AS REVEALED BY THEIR LETTERS. CURLE. For those readers to whom a published correspondence is enjoyable literature these newly discovered letters may have some interest. However, it is a book that might well have been left unwritten.

THE CHIFFON SCARF. EBERHART. Not until the third victim is found do the airplane tragedies prove more sinister than accidental. One of the best of Mrs. Eberhart's mysteries.

THE GREAT TRADITION. KEYES. Those who have read Senator Marlowe's Daughter will follow with interest the fortunes of her son, Chris, who goes to Germany to control his father's estate. His affiliation with the Hitler movement and his rescue by an American woman who turns a hopeless love into a great friendship makes this more than an exciting story.

ANTHOLOGY OF THE BIBLE. PARKER. A new compilation of related material grouped under many headings, this should be of great service to teachers and students of the Bible.

THE CRYING SISTERS. SEELEY. Although the general reader would prefer characters of more believable temperaments and reactions, the author makes this mystery at a summer resort an exciting successor to her "Listening House."

THE BOOK OF INDOOR HOBBIES. STIERI. Here are hobbies that may be enjoyed in the apartment or small home, with simple directions for their cultivation. The author has taken into consideration the necessity for equipment space and has chosen his subjects accordingly.

FROM ANOTHER WORLD. UNTERMEYER. From the mass of interesting acquaintances with famous and talented people, especially of the literary world, Untermeyer has chosen those brilliant lives for this work which will interest all poetry lovers. To read it is to be made aware of new qualities of personality in well-known writers.

THE SEA TOWER. WALPOLE. The tragedy brought about in the lives of all who came in contact with the unnatural possessive love of Mrs. Field for her two sons, grows from an ominous threat to a stirring climax. England, the sea, loneliness and the determination of the young wife to save her husband are woven into as thrilling a story as Walpole has ever created.

THE CITY OF GOLD. YOUNG. Young's new novel deals with the changes brought into Johannesburg with the mad rush for gold. Some of the characters of They Seek a Country are even more vividly portrayed here, as the family life of the Graftons is shown through the changing period of time.

COUNTERFEIT COINS PASSED AT SERVICE CLUB

Frank Batchelder, member of the Treasury department of the United States Secret Service branch, gave a talk at the meeting of the Andover Service Club in the Square and Compass hall, last Thursday evening. Mr. Batchelder showed bogus money, stating that counterfeiting is one of the oldest crimes in the country, and that his bureau is one of the oldest law-enforcing bodies in the United States, dating back to the time of the Civil War. "About seventy per cent of the counterfeiting is done in and around New York," he explained, "but thanks to the co-operation of the police and public these operations are rapidly decreasing." The processes in manufacturing this type of money were shown and explained, also.

A catered supper preceded the business meeting. Nothing definite has been decided for the next meeting.

president of the West Roxbury Historical Society and treasurer of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He will describe stirring events of pre-Revolutionary days in Boston and the important part played by the Meeting House. His subject will be "The Great Town Meetings."

Following the session tea will be served.

Everyone is familiar with the name of the Old South Meeting House and its location but there are many who know little of its history. The building is located in what was once the garden of John Winthrop, first governor of Massachusetts, and nearby Spring Lane denotes the location of his spring. Within a short distance are King's Chapel and its burying ground, the Old State House, the site of the Boston Massacre, that of the birthplace of Benjamin Franklin and that of Province House, home of Provincial Governors, while not far away are the Paul Revere House, the Old North Church and other historical places.

Members of the Andover Historical Society are urged to attend. When the roll-call is made Andover should respond with a generous number of representatives.

by Telephone

Folks ask you to "drop in" because they like to talk to you. But you're so seldom in their neighborhood. Perhaps they're wondering a little why you never accepted their cordial, really sincere invitation.

Even if it isn't convenient to visit their home, you can accept their invitation. You can drop in for a chat — by telephone. They'll appreciate it so much. You'll enjoy the voice-to-voice visit. And it costs so very little. Rates for out-of-town calls are especially low evenings after 7 and all day Sunday.

SEE WHAT THE YARDSTICK SAYS ABOUT BIGNESS!

The Ford V-8 has the shortest engine and the longest springbase among all low-priced cars. So, inside the body, where bigness counts, it's not surprising to discover the following facts:

A Inside length, windshield to rear window, is 100 $\frac{1}{4}$ inches... actually greater than some cars substantially higher in price!

D Rear seat knee room exceeds that in either of the other two leading cars... seat adjusted all the way back!

C Rear seat passengers in a Ford ride farther ahead of the rear spring center, toward the center of the car where riding quality is best, than passengers in any other car at the price!

B. P. W. Staff, Sleepless For Over 30 Hours, Kept Busy Answering Phone

It's the modern conveniences that bring so many inconveniences in today's snowstorms. The storm pictured above, in the late 1800's, had no automobiles to make quick plowing necessary.

The busiest place in town last night and today was the Board of Public Works office where the supervising staff had been trying to direct plows, answer complaints and keep awake. Reporting at seven Wednesday morning for what was to have been an ordinary day's work, they had watched an apparently innocuous snow flurry fall all day to show any signs of plowing up. And then just as the usual day's work was to be ended, the blizzard started. Between five and seven conditions changed drastically, the result being that part of the staff had to stay on all night without a chance to sleep until late Thursday afternoon, a stretch of 35 or so hours without a wink.

The town plows were out about seven, bigger ones going out at intervals after eight. Most of the streets had been run over twice by morning, but it was almost a useless task. As one plow-driver said, we'd go down one street and then by the time we had plowed down another, the first one had filled in again. This afternoon about nine private plows were on duty, plus two private tractors. Sidewalk plows proved useless.

One of the most difficult problems was the large amount of phone calls, the only lull being a brief period between 4 and 5:30 a. m. The phone rang practically continuously thereafter, with the fagged-out staff trying successfully to be patient in their answers to the complaints. Everything possible was being done, they explained to the complainants who failed to realize that Andover was much better off than most towns despite the very unexpected emergency.

Hereof fail not, and make return of this warrant with your doings thereon, at the time and place of said meeting.

Given under our hands this thirteenth day of February, A.D., 1940.

Happy Days!

Old Man Winter sent the best Valentine of all!...None of these namby-pamby snow flurries the weather man talks about but he tempestuously sent by air, inches and inches of good skiable snow... bless him...but he certainly has been playing fast and loose with us for a long, long time...I suppose he didn't want to be tied to anybody's apron strings...Albeit we were practically strangled by our purse-strings...Anyway, he came through for us with the Prospect of skiing at home this week-end...

Rain didn't about-face skiers last week-end who were headed for the mountains, with North Conway attracting Ruth and Bradford Holt, Richard Abbott and George Markey, and Center Eppingham, Bailey Lenane, John Thomas, Tom Hendricks, Nancy Locke, Jeannette Bat-cheller, Rod Hill and Christine... Dot Christie had a royal time at Dartmouth...and Bud and Barbara Cutler found New Hampton none too dusty...or powdery either, I bet...

Elmer and Gladys Grover beat it for Gifford first thing Sunday morning and Harold Rutter was conquering the icy trail at Cannon.

What a come down when you have to take the tramway both ways...Oh, please, Instructor, how long 'fore I can ski like Ed Goodwin?...

That's what I like about my instructor, straight from the shoulder every time....!

ALL THE TOMORROWS, BABSON. A beautifully written story of present-day China, with many charming glimpses of the old-fashioned, carefree days. MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS, SAROYAN. Even the critics do not seem to know exactly what this much talked-about play is driving at. The idea seems to be that poetry is necessary in this sad world of ours. Mr. Saroyan might be called a surrealist playwright.

QUEEN ANNE BOLEYN, HACKETT. One of the most tragic and dramatic figures during the reign of Henry VIII was Anne Boleyn, who aimed for the crown and in attaining it signed her own death warrant. A sympathetic biography and a fine picture of life during this period of English history.

THIS IS WHAT HAPPENED, CLAYMORE. The amusing qualities of some chapters of this mystery compensate for the very thinly veiled plot. Nobody seems especially concerned about the unfortunate whose untimely departs upset a few plans for some of the people.

WHAT TO LISTEN FOR IN MUSIC, COPLAND. Mr. Copland, a noted composer, is well qualified to write a book which will help people become more intelligent listeners. Tone color, structure and the different instruments are considered at some length, also the part played by the interpreter or conductor in making music more appealing.

YOU AND HEREDITY, SCHEINFELD. The public is usually on the outside concerning hereditary traits and characteristics. This book however is written for the average person and makes clear, with its fine illustrations, many of the wrong concepts which have been handed down for generations.

Give Course Here In Visual Education

More than forty teachers and school officials from Andover and surrounding towns were present Monday afternoon at the first class of a Boston University Extension course in "Visual Education," at the Junior High school. The course is being given by Professor Abraham Krasker, who is in charge of the Boston University film service, from which the local schools borrow many films for classroom use.

Professor Krasker stated that the title "Visual Education" is really a misnomer, because the course will include the study of many other types of teaching aids, in addition to visual aids.

One-half of the time of each class will be spent by the professor in demonstration and lecture. The remainder will consist of laboratory work, in which each student will have an opportunity to make materials and learn the use of equipment which may be used in his own work.

Students may register for the course at the second meeting Monday, 4:15 at the Andover Junior high school.

Letter From Turkish Earthquake Area Describes Relief Measures

Miss Ethel W. Putney, American citizen now in Istanbul, Turkey, writes in a letter addressed to Mrs. Myron Guttererson the following information concerning the earthquake:

"All of us share the same sorrow as more news comes in of the earthquake and its thousands of victims. Everybody knows someone in the ruined area of eastern Anatolia and some of our school girls live there. Happily our girls have all had good news but as yet uncounted thousands of others were killed in the earthquake or in the severe blizzards following, hindering the rescue of those left alive under the ruins. But you have read it all in your newspapers and of the floods in the northwest which are also proving disastrous to property. I doubt, however, if your papers have told you of the courage, activity and generosity with which it is all being met. Everybody is giving anything he has from old clothes to labor. Every organization is collecting money from its members, employees of schools, government and large commercial companies are giving percentages of their salaries, the richer firms adding large sums besides. For example, The Socony Vacuum Oil company is doubling the 3 per cent of the salaries of all the employees and in addition refunding to the American hospital its estimated loss of income of 3000 liras (now about $1625) a month while Dr. Shepard is away. The American community here, besides collecting substantial gifts of money and paying percentages on salaries, offered the government the services of a medical unit which was warmly welcomed and assigned to a hundred bed emergency hospital to be set up in places as near as they can get to the area most affected by the earthquakes. So Dr. Shepard, Miss Shank, a young Turkish interne, a cook and an orderly from the hospital, and Mrs. Helen Haight Orphan, an American nurse married here, set out last week Thursday for their post. Such deep snow had blocked the roads that it took them a week to reach Zara, which is about fifty miles east of Sivas, where they are setting up their tent hospital. From there they hope to go by mule back to the desperately needy villages over the mountains.

The country is much touched by the spontaneous and unexpected offers of help of different sorts and gifts of money which have come from all over the world, from Australia to Canada. So a new sense of belonging to a family of nations is growing up here in this time of war and calamity."

Miss Putney's letter is dated January 12, coinciding with the date of the Turkish Benefit bridge in the November club.

Harter, world traveler, aviator, deep-sea diver and all-round athlete, told the combined junior and senior high schools some of his many traveling experiences at the utility period, yesterday, in Memorial auditorium. He brought with him many odd mementos from all parts of the world and a large collection of costumes, weapons and musical instruments.

TO REVISE TRAFFIC RULES

A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barnum, Shattuck Farm, West Andover, Tuesday at the Lawrence General hospital.

A son to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Robertson of Malden Friday morning. Both parents were formerly of Andover, the mother being the former Hazel Polgreen.

Dr. and Mrs. John S. Rhodes are rejoicing over the birth of a daughter at Raleigh, N. C. The mother is the former Eleanor Flint, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Flint of 35 Washington avenue.

CLANSWOMEN TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS

Visitors from Lawrence and Haverhill Clan auxiliaries are expected tonight, travel conditions permitting, at a Valentine party to be conducted by the local auxiliary at 7:45 in Fraternal hall. There will be a covered dish supper.

BRIGGS-ALLEN NOTES

John Newall presented the Briggs-Allen school with a hanging feeding station which his great-grandfather, Mr. Richard A. Ward, Lowell street, had made. Mr. Ward, who is eighty-five years old and has been confined to his chair for years, has a hobby of making different types of feeding stations for birds. He says his pay is having the birds use them.

Appropriate exercises were held on Monday in memory of Lincoln, closing with the reading by Priscilla Stevens of the Proclamation, followed by the Flag Salute with John Gallagher holding the flag.

Valentine Day is always a gala affair. Boxes were in three rooms and keen enjoyment was shown over the valentines. Mrs. Sanborn had shown the pupils how to make attractive valentine book-marks. Refreshments were served by Edna Beck and Lila Phillips.

Cooling Off

Ain't it?

Governor Saltonstall has advised everyone who doesn't absolutely have to go out today to stay home—and this morning found many local people trying to get home to do just that...townspeople had unexpected overnight guests getting stiff necks on their sofas...The first Lawrence bus swung out of the square a little after eight A.M. and last night's 9:35 train from Boston, which was due in Andover about 10:20, arrived this morning at 8:25 having left the North Station at 5:50...consequently, Sonja Henie fans who enjoyed the show last night are enjoying a holiday today...Mr. W. F. Reinhold arrived at Miller's Shoe store with a magnitude of cricks in his personage and with little or no magnanimity toward the sleeping accommodations at the North Station...The benches, it seems, are made of hard wood...

Other companions who were stationed for the evening were Miss Minnie Valentine, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Thelma Beck, Mr. and Mrs. George Bruce, David Lovely, Douglas Mailey, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Shaw, Charles Whiteside, Mr. and Mrs. James Snow, George Snow, (D. P. Snow and I. C. Snow) Harold, Dorothy, and Mildred Gordon, Andrew Jackson, Miss Margaret Buchan, John Lowe, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Robbins...and thousands of others...

In some ways it wasn't so bad to be lost in the scuffle because those who were snugly at home during the blizzardous night got stuck with the shovel...Many noses pressed window panes waiting for neighbors to kindly clear the sidewalks...Roger Whitcomb blithely spurred on Irving J. who looked none too happy in his role of family snow plow...

We're very proud of Dan Hartigan's piscatorial accomplishments in Miami seas (it was a sail fish, 82 inches long) but we can't imagine anyone being content to trade a fishing line for a snow shovel...

It looks as if the two schools of thought which have been wrangling about whether the ground hog saw his shadow or not have had proof enough that he didn't...either that or one of the members of the opposition sneaked down to the McClellan Gift Shop and shook one of the French paperweights...

Lady Fluga is enjoying a visit to New York with Mr. and Mrs. John MacKenzie of Balmoral street...They will attend the dog show while they are there...I suppose she thinks she'll come back and wow the town with her blue ribbons and cups and things...but wait until she sees Sally (Boston Terrier) Brigham's new green coat...

"Same Day" Couple Celebrate Same Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Keith of 175 North Main street who were born on the same day, May 4, same year, and on the same street in Arbroath, Scotland, also celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary on the same day, February 10, at the same place, home of Mr. and Mrs. John Keith of 68 Essex street. They were married on the same day too, February 12, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Valentine of Brechin Terrace.

A buffet lunch featuring a huge anniversary cake was enjoyed by the large gathering of over forty friends and relatives present. Mrs. George Campbell opened the entertaining program with a poem dedicated to the couple which she had written herself. George Campbell,

Mrs. George Gordon and David Wallace sang several solos and Miss Helen Goff gave several piano selections. Andrew Campbell played the accordion. Games and dancing were also enjoyed.

A shower bouquet of red roses and white carnations hanging with crisp dollar bills was presented to the couple and many congratulatory messages were also received.

David Keith, gowned in white and carrying a bouquet, was the bride in a mock marriage and Mrs. Joseph Keith, Jr., (Mr. Keith was the best man at the original wedding) was the groom. George Campbell was the bridesmaid and Malcolm Windham was the best man. Hector Keith performed the ceremony.

Exhibit Emphasizes Creative Development

The Picasso exhibition to be at Addison Gallery until March 10, distinctly shows that Picasso's development can not be described by a list of processes and influences. His range of ideas, subjects, and his wealth of original ways of expressing them are so highly varied that it is almost impossible to associate the many types with one artist. His imagination never becomes arrested at a particular spot in his development but is urged on by his "enormous creative energy" often to unexplored fields, thus making it impossible to like or dislike all of Picasso's works. If you are a lover of the modern, you will enjoy "The Mirror" with its splashes of magnificent colors in incongruous shapes and patterns, or "Guernica," a jumble of grotesque figures that eventually make a lot of sense, or "Guitar and Violin" which doesn't seem to make sense at all. But whatever your tastes, the beauty of "La Coiffure," Picasso's original, is undeniable. It makes the reproductions of his less comprehensible pictures on exhibit look like so much hippotamy.

The artist's conviction that "Art is not the application of a canon of beauty but what the instinct and brain can conceive beyond any canon" as applied to "La Coiffure" is more than reasonable, it not only creates a mood and charms the eye, but it stimulates the mind, but when the application is to pictures such as "Head of a Young Woman" we are inclined to wonder if the outward appearance must be so distorted before we can be impressed with "what the instinct and brain have conceived beyond."

The Fiske and Clare Shenehon Boyd exhibit shows a concentration on landscapes with Mr. Boyd's principal interest, the line drawing. He is constantly searching for lines and shapes that move in harmony with his own feelings "preserving the pattern of line and intentional losing the literal theme." Mrs. Boyd's style also makes an interesting study with more interest being in what is attempted than what is accomplished.

Costume Ball Tomorrow Evening

Modern dress will be discarded for costumes of all types and ages at the Punchard Service Club ball tomorrow evening in the gymnasium. Of course the committee will welcome the attendance of anyone sans disguise, but costumes are preferred to be judged for the many prizes that will be awarded.

An orchestra will provide the music for general dancing and refreshments will be served. Tickets are now on sale at 35 cents.

Committee: Barbara Gahm, Mary Dunn, Dorothy Christie, Helen Crockett, Ruth Cashman and Florence Nicol.
